Fourth generation stonemason business badly affected when holding company went into administration following loss of major customer

A division, which was not included in administration, reverted to the original model of headstones and kitchen worktops, but this time direct to consumer

Reward saw the potential of the family-run business and provided working capital facility for stock purchases to meet growing demand for its quality products

The company is enjoying great success and has forecast to increase its turnover to £5m+ this year

Funding needed to enable a London-based investor to buy a former ten-bedroom hotel and a guest house in the North West

Both were to be turned into multi-occupancy homes, with short-term tenancy agreements

With a first charge security on both properties, and with enough equity to provide the security, Reward quickly arranged a short-term bridge to help purchase them
